Why Information Security Awareness Program?

People are the weakest link in an organization's attempts to secure its information assets – be it inside your IT systems or printed documents. However, more often than not, they are the most neglected aspect of an organization's information security management system. Organizations must realize that they cannot protect the confidentiality, integrity and availability of their information assets without ensuring that all people involved in using and managing information asset

1. Understand their roles and responsibilities related to information security
2. Understand organization's information security policies and procedures
3. Have at least adequate knowledge of tools and techniques required and available to protect information assets, which they are responsible for.

Information security awareness program assists in building and maintaining a comprehensive awareness among employees – both end-users as well as system administrators/ IT team. It also communicates management intent on information security requirements and provides consistent guidance to your IT team and users. It demonstrates your commitment to information security and also provides assurance to your auditors.
